

09/462796

35

ABSTRACT

A semiconductor device capable of facilitating high density mounting at low cost without causing any defective conduction at the time of connection to a substrate, a mounting structure thereof and a method of fabrication thereof, characterized in that pyramidal bump electrodes are bonded onto pad electrodes arranged on a semiconductor chip to form the semiconductor device.

RECORDED - INDEXED - SERIALIZED - FILED